*Tyler Junior College
Tyler, Texas*

In "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening," Robert Frost spoke for more than 5,000 TJC day and evening students of 1971-72 when he declared:

But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

For the two-thirds academic day students, TJC is the beginning of the beginning of a professional career. For the one-third technical students, it's the beginning of a career.

These '72 pages are some of the records of some of the 3,000 day students — academic and technical — study and fun.

Directors

GENE BLAKELY, Business Manager
B.B.A., North Texas State University

As business manager, Gene Blakely works with every division and department of the college.

Directly under Fiscal Vice President R. H. Barrett, Blakely is in charge of most financial business affairs: bookkeeping, payroll, purchasing of supplies and equipment, federal and state reports.

The fiscal vice president's office compiles the annual financial budget for the college, supervises building projects and the maintenance of present buildings and equipment.

In working directly with students, his duties include handling student loans and scholarships.

Sans Souci is the second oldest sorority on campus.

Its aims as stated in its constitution are to establish sisterhood for physical, intellectual, social and spiritual development of its members.

The sponsor is English instructor Mrs. Noamie R. Byrum.

The organization has performed numerous services in the surrounding community, such as visiting the home for the mentally retarded, presenting gifts and singing Christmas carols to the children's ward in local hospitals, visiting a local home for the aged and entertaining at the East Texas Tuberculosis Hospital on Valentine Day.

Sans Souci and her brother fraternity, Kappa Sigma Lambda, also work together on community projects.

In performing these and other off-campus services, Sans Souci is fulfilling its pledge to help the needy and neglected.

On-campus activities include sponsoring the annual all-college spring formal.

During homecoming each year, the sorority also has a luncheon at the Red Barn for its exes and enters a float for parade competition. Five organizations this year have selected their homecoming queen candidates from Sans Souci. Sans Souci received second runner-up for homecoming queen.

The 1971 pledge class won the annual Field Day, athletic competition over pledges from three sororities.

For the sorority itself, the group takes an out-of-town trip. The past several years this trip has been to New Orleans.

Kappa Sig Pool Tables Yield Scholarships

Kappa Sigma Lambda's Student Center pool tables will send three persons to college each year.

The fraternity will begin awarding tuition scholarships next semester.

Kappa Sigma Lambda President Thad Felder says the first ones will be three one-semester scholarships. But beginning in the fall, scholarships will be on a full year basis "as long as the four pool tables remain in the Student Center."

Half of all money the coin-operated tables take in from the 25-cent games goes to Kappa Sigma Lambda. The other half goes to the local owner of the tables.

Felder said applications and selection of scholarship recipients will be left up to the administration.

Why would a fraternity choose to establish a scholarship?

"It's the pride in knowing you have helped someone," Felder explained.

When the fraternity got approval to sponsor tables, they appointed a committee to decide what to do with the money.

"We came up with some really good ideas--but the scholarship suggestion was the only one that got the unanimous approval of the fraternity members," Felder said.

The fraternity decided to pay only tuition rather than tuition and books because "we wanted to help as many people as possible."

Felder said the scholarship is part of the fraternity's "push for acceptance as a worthy, functioning campus organization."

Kappa Sig, like other campus fraternities, is trying to change the image of the fraternity from "Saturday night beer parties" and "carousing around."

Although nothing definite has been decided, Felder says there is some discussion of opening the Student Center at night.

"Changing their image," according to Felder, "also means cutting the word 'tradition' out of our vocabulary."

His fraternity has asked the college's scholarship committee to select recipients because the fraternity does not feel qualified.

President H. E. Jenkins said a "faculty scholarship committee" would select applicants on the basis of scholastic ability and financial need.

All applications for the scholarships will be handled by Administrative Assistant Miss Ava Gentry, he said.

The Student Center is open 7 a.m.-4 p.m. and Felder says he hasn't seen an empty table yet.

BSU Director Don Mize

The Baptist Student Union, sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention of Texas, is housed in a modern two-story brick structure across from the Student Center.

The BSU is open to all junior college students from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. each school day.

More than 300 active members come by for fellowship, fun and relaxation.

The BSU has modern facilities with recreational space for chess, ping pong and other table games. It has a spacious library, prayer room, classrooms and an amphitheater.

BSU Director Don Mize encourages students to drop over for recreation and study but emphasizes the "program of work is really what members concentrate on."

Mize wants very much to involve students in the various programs. He promises them excellent leadership training.

The religious includes recreation, communications, education and missions.

Through its various programs the BSU links Christianity to the relevancy of Christ on campus.

FLOYD WAGSTAFF

"To live a disciplined life, and to accept the result of that discipline as the will of God — that is the mark of a man." Coach Tom Landry on Floyd Wagstaff.

Floyd Wagstaff is that man. He has met all standards for the fulfillment of manhood because he is disciplined and has a firm belief in God.

For 25 years he has spent the better part of each day striving to make his college better, both academically and physically.

His record speaks for itself. He is the National Junior College Athletic Association record holder for most wins in a career and he has received the Certificate of Service four times in his 25 years at TJC. His name is spoken with reverence in Hutchinson, Kans. He has made junior college sports part of what it is today . . . a system of proving that young athletes can compete in major colleges after spending two years in preparation for the big time.

Floyd Wagstaff . . . We the 1972 Apache Staff dedicate this section to you for your work, loyalty and service to mankind. May you always carry your standards high and never accept anything but the best.

With backs to the wall after two straight losses, the Apaches roared back to nine victories without a loss and blew eight conference foes aside in their quest for victory.

Kilgore College, the last contender and previously ranked No. 4, fell, giving the Apaches the conference championship and the No. 5 junior college ranking in America.

Tribe Captures Texas

The '72 Apache basketball season is one fans will never forget.

Coach Floyd Wagstaff began the season just 10 games shy of breaking the record for most wins in a career by a junior college coach. It was a record he was to surpass with some difficulty.

The Apaches stumbled, sputtered and fell three times before the Christmas break to go home thinking of the 6-3 record they left behind.

Then they arrived. After the break nine teams fell like dominoes lined up in a row and the Apaches were in first place in the conference.

Then Kilgore College dropped the Apaches into a tie before Tyler came back the next week and moved into the lead with a 120-106 win. The win over Kilgore was characteristic of the Apaches.

They avenged every loss they took. San Jacinto, Lon Morris and the University of Houston freshmen all fell in second meetings.

The Apaches also went through the entire season without losing on their home court as they reeled off 13 victories on the friendly confines of Wagstaff Gym before the Regional play-offs.

Tyler Junior College News

More than 60 freshman and sophomore journalists edited weekly editions of the '71-'72 campus newspaper. They added an All-American rating to the publication's list of 31 consecutive semester "distinctly superior" papers.

Apache Yearbook

Editor Donna Kelly wraps up the final shipment with help from some of her staff.

Right is photographer Bob Langham. Below are sports editors Pat Devaney and Robert Collins. Also advertising managers Terry Nelson and Brad Edgar. Not shown is assistant editor Richard Walker.
